Shostakovich Concerto for Piano, Trumpet, and Strings

IV. Allegro con brio

(Reh. 63 - 65) ●

The character for this section needs to be very playful, almost goofy. Avoid the temptation of playing this too strongly and stay within an easy solo p/mp dynamic. I like to play from the eighth bar of this passage until the second bar of Reh. 64 in one breath to create one long line. In the ad lib. section, I shape this with a nice acceleration to the written low C, then do a mirror deceleration back up to the D at Reh. 64. The sextuplets don't need to get too fast. If they do, it all becomes too hectic and loses the character. All articulation needs to be crisp with a spinning vibrancy on all accented notes.
