PROGRAM NOTES

Jötenheim (2023) – Nathan Daughtery

Jötenheim is the third and final movement from the 15-minute work As Above, So Below. Commissioned by the Woodbury High School Percussion Ensemble (Minnesota) and a consortium of other ensembles, the large-scale work delves into the universe of Norse mythology. It centers on Yggdrasil, the “Tree of Life,” with branches that extend to all nine of the worlds that make up the Norse mythological universe. The tree’s three roots connect three of these worlds – Asgard, Niflheim, and Jötenheim – which make up the three movements of the piece.

Jötenheim: The Land of the Giants, features a vast, mighty wilderness with deep, dark forests and mountain peaks. Enemies of the gods, the giants have experienced plenty of battles here. It is also the home of Mímir's well of wisdom. Driven by a relentless, low ostinato in the piano and marimba, this movement is filled with excitement from beginning to end.

A Ceiling Full of Stars (2009) - Blake Tyson

A Ceiling Full of Stars is a journey through space as seen through the eyes of a child. There is a sense of wonder and amazement. There are struggles to break free of unseen forces and there are moments of weightlessness. A sense of speed simmers beneath a slowly moving surface, depicting the awe-inspiring infinity of space.

A Ceiling Full of Stars is dedicated to my parents who fostered my imagination, inspired my curiosity, and made everything possible.

Family Tree (2024) - CJ Menge

Family Tree was commissioned by Dr. Brian West and the TCU Percussion Orchestra. The piece celebrates the far reaching legacy of the TCU percussion family, students and instructors alike, with Dr. West, Professor of Music and Coordinator of Percussion, serving as the central guiding figure of the program. The 2023-2024 school year marks Dr. West's 30th year teaching at the university level, of which the past 23 years have been at TCU. In that time the TCU percussion studio has seen 125 students graduate as music majors, with countless others passing through the program as non-majors.

Family Tree musically depicts the life journey of someone who dedicates themselves to the serious study of percussion, moving from student to teacher, then in time becoming a trusted expert and valued mentor to others. This is a path that every current TCU percussion student or alumni of the program is traveling, regardless of the stage of their individual life journey. I kept three of Dr. West's core values in mind while choosing the musical content and direction for the piece: Faith, Family, and Friends.

I envisioned the TCU Family Tree as a fully mature, magnificent tree, with an extensive root system, large and sturdy trunk, lush canopy, and a network of branches reaching out and continually growing in every direction. This imagery helped me to craft three primary musical sections, with several shorter transition moments serving to weave the entire piece together. The three primary sections are: Roots, Canopy, and Branches. The opening Roots section represents the young music student's early influences and development, with a focus on rhythmic drive, shorter melodic interjections, and the first taste of exciting ensemble interaction. The Canopy section encourages the student to take time to reflect on the support they receive from family and friends as they pursue their passions, and the central role that faith plays in finding meaning in music and life. The final section of the piece, Branches, marks the moments in which a musician discovers their unique expressive voice, enabling them to create their own individual musical paths in the world. The closing explosion of sounds signifies the moments when a student leaves the TCU family tree to become their own tree of strength and support for others. In this way the legacy of the family continues to grow.

Chameleon Music (1988) - Dan Welcher

When Richard Gipson, Director of the University of Oklahoma Percussion Ensemble, called me in 1987 to ask if I'd like to write a piece for ten mallet players, my first instinct was to pour myself a rum-and-coke. Ten marimbas?? Even by adding some other mallet instruments, I could only envision music for lounging on a beach — music with the same little paper umbrellas coming out of it that the drinks have. When he told me he supposed I could make two of the players non-mallet players, I capitulated. And when I heard his compact disc Laser Woodcuts, I realized that my premonitions were wrong in the first place.

There is quite a variety within the "Mostly Mallet" type of percussion ensemble, I soon came to understand. Adding the two non-mallet players and separating the groups in specific patterns on stage to allow antiphonal effects was my first decision, but working with the different kinds of mallet instruments and different playing techniques soon followed. I began looking for an idea on which to hang my pieces, and I found it in a story by Truman Capote, entitled "Music for Chameleons." More a vignette about a person and a place than a true story, the piece described a visit by Capote to Martinique, and the home of a woman there. She lived on the edge of the jungle, and had on her terrace a concert grand piano that had been played by a number of famous visitors. The music she played for Capote was Mozart, and the result of the little recital was the inspiration for my piece. It seems that the little lizards living nearby had become accustomed to her playing, and had grown to be quite discerning in their taste. The composer they responded to most was Mozart - whenever she would play a sonata of his, the chameleons came out in droves from the jungle. They would sneak tentatively forward at first, then (emboldened by Wolfgang?) Come to lie right at her feet while she played. When she finished, she'd stamp her feet on the tiles, and the lizards would "scatter, like the shower of sparks from an exploding star."

The music describes this scene, but more than that. It attempts to show in a rather abstract fashion how music - Mozart's music, specifically - can cast a spell over other side uncivilized beings. The piece has four subtitled sections: "The Jungle at Night," "The Chameleon Circle," "The Spell," and "The Retreat." In the first section, marimbas provide a chordal curtain of sound, with four kinds of wind chimes adding a scent of the tropics. After the atmosphere of the place has been established, the second section proceeds immediately. "The Chameleon Circle" presents the cast of characters, in the form of three different motives (played on xylophone, glockenspiel, and bass marimba, respectively). These could be thought of as some of the chameleons waiting at the edge of the jungle - but they carry with themselves the seeds of the music of their "favorite composer." In the ensuing passage, the tempo picks up, and we hear these characters growing bolder. When the tempo slows again, we are in "The Spell." N

O fewer than four different Mozart sonatas are quoted: K. 279, K. 281, K. 330, and K. 332. Elements of the melodic turns in these fragments seem somehow familiar, and in fact we've just heard them in "The Chameleon Circle," slightly disguised. As the Mozart music overlaps and combines in ways Mozart never intended (but which, I think, he might have approved), the night is filled with charmed animals, crickets, and, of course, chameleons. At the height of their reverie, though, there is a stamping of feet - a scattering of tiny legs - and the sounds of the jungle at night return, with the rarest echoes of Mozart still lingering in the breeze.

At the Dawn of War (2005) - Kevin Erickson

The idea for this piece began to manifest itself early in the fall of 2000, with the original sketches following soon thereafter. I had intended to create a work that would depict different episodes in a day of war. By spring of 2001, the project had been moved to the back burner, with no definite plan for completion. The following fall, I was able to revisit my sketches. Work had resumed for only a couple of weeks when our nation was struck by the tragic events of September 11, 2001. The flood of emotions that followed fueled my desire to see this project come to fruition. Focusing the direction of the project became increasingly difficult as the piece began to morph into something completely different than what had been originally intended. I had considered changing the title to An Act of War and, subsequently, new sketches were composed to depict the actual events of 9/11. As I grew increasingly frustrated with the progress of the work, I found that I did not want to glorify the attack on our homeland. I then looked back at the original ideas for the piece, realizing that the images on my head were of American offensive efforts in war. This could be any war, be it the retaliatory efforts following 9/11 or otherwise for that matter. With this in mind, I opted not to make the work programmatic in the traditional, but rather to let listeners conjure up images based on their own experiences.

This work is dedicated to the heroic men and women who gave wholly of themselves for their country on 11 September 2001. Let us never forget their sacrifice.

Cascading Reflection (2024) - Sandi Rennick

Cascading Reflection is an energetic and fast-paced work scored for a large ensemble. Commissioned for the Texas A&M University-Commerce Percussion Ensemble 2023 PASIC Showcase Concert, "Cascading Reflection" was designed as a musical interpretation of a ripple-effect, with each melodic and rhythmic motif cascading into the next. The title "Cascading Reflection" refers to the process of reflecting on one's thoughts, actions, or decisions in a continuous and interconnected manner, often leading to deeper self awareness and understanding. The specific moment of "reflection" that inspired this piece is a conversation between Christopher Deane, Brian Zator, and myself in June of 2016 about a melodic idea in Chris's piece "Etude for a Quiet Hall." Looking back, that conversation initiated a ripple-effect in my own life, eventually leading to my involvement in the TAMU-C percussion program. "Cascading Reflection" serves as a musical "thank you" to Chris, as well as a celebration of the TAMU-C students and faculty.

White Feather (2018) - John Psathas

The title of this work refers to what is often considered the most common angel feather.

I had originally intended to title the work 'our ever-loving ghosts'. When I imagine angels, I think of the loved ones I've lost, still around me, somehow. Transmitting love and care.

Supposedly, a sign our angels are with us is finding a feather. Coming across a feather in your path, or finding one in an unexpected place is thought to be a message from the angels. Specifically, the white feather is thought to be a sign of faith and protection. It can also be an angel telling you that your loved ones are safe and well.

It is said our angels are always near us, looking over us and protecting us, yet we very rarely know that they are there. Sometimes, in the midst of our rapidly-paced living, they'll send us small signs and signals to let us know they're near, and will always be there for us (until we are 'there' for others).

These signs can be anything from a subtle flash of light, a rainbow, or an unexpected, sudden feeling of love and warmth within.

I Ching: The Book of Changes (2008) - Dwayne Rice

Commissioned by Brian A. West and the TCU Percussion Orchestra, I Ching (2008) is a set of variations for large percussion ensemble based on concepts from the ancient Chinese book of wisdom by the same name.

The "I Ching" (pronounced Yee Jing), or the Book of Changes, is an ancient Chinese book of wisdom derived from the polar concepts of Yang (the light or creative) and Yin (the dark or receptive). Yang is represented by a solid line and Yin by a broken line. These lines are then combined into all possible groups of three, creating eight different trigrams (a set of three lines). Each trigram is associated with an image of something that exists between Heaven and Earth.

The trigrams are then stacked onto each other in all possible combinations of two, resulting in 64 Hexagrams (a set of six lines), each representing a degree of change that can happen in our lives. Each degree of change is given a name, an image, an explanation, and a way to confront the change.

The book is often labeled as mysticism, but is actually very far from it. It can be used as a practical way to approach life. Both Taoism and Confucianism, the predominant schools of thought in China, have their roots in its study.

The inspiration for I Ching came from the images of the eight trigrams, which are presented in the following order: Earth, Mountain, Water, Wind, Thunder, Fire, Lake, and Heaven. The resulting piece is a set of variations on a theme, each basically an “impression” of the trigram’s image and meaning.

The connections between the piece and the actual I Ching run much deeper than just the surface images of the trigrams. They not only dictate both the form and the feel of each musical section, but their consecutive connections into hexagrams, and those hexagram’s degrees of change, give the piece its direction and momentum.

A recording can be heard on TCU’s album “Escape Velocity.”

GUEST ARTISTS

Ricardo Bozas was born in Montevideo, Uruguay, home of Tango and Candombe. His influences are vast, shaping his virtuosic playing on a wide variety of world instruments and styles, and he specializes in music from Uruguay, Brazil, Cuba, Spain, the Caribbean Islands, and numerous other Latin American countries. A sought-after live and studio percussionist, Ricardo has had opportunities to perform with many high-profile artists, including Aretha Franklin, Al DiMeola, Alex Acuña, Luis Conte, Horacio “El Negro” Hernandez, Steve Smith, and Dave Weckl. He also spent time touring Uruguay and Argentina with Vinicius de Moraes, the famous Brazilian composer and bossa nova pioneer most known as the lyricist for the eternal “Garota de Ipanema” (Girl from Ipanema).

In addition to his many travels performing in Latin America, Ricardo spent four years in Spain touring with the “Samba Trio” and “The Peter Pan Band,” and he participated in the “500 years of Carnaval” in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil in 2000, parading through the Sambodromo with “Boi da Ilha do Governador” escola de samba. He is a graduate of the University of North Texas College of Music where he played in many notable ensembles, including the Grammy nominated One O’Clock Lab Band as well as the 1987 World Champion PASIC Drumline.

Dr. Andrew Eldridge is the Assistant Professor of Percussion and Coordinator of Percussion at the University of Texas at Arlington. Under his direction, the UTA Percussion Ensemble was selected to present the New Literature Session at the 2017 Percussive Arts Society International Convention (PASIC). The ensemble also performed a Showcase Concert at the Texas Music Educators Association (TMEA) annual convention in February 2017. Dedicated to contributing new repertoire to the percussion ensemble art form, the UTA Percussion Ensemble continues to commission music and give world premieres.

The most recent projects include a world premiere of Cody Holmes’s “Remnants,” as well as a commission and world premiere from composers Nathan Daughtrey and Francisco Perez.

Andrew serves on the Percussion Ensemble Committee for the Percussive Arts Society. He served a three-year term on the Lone Star Wind Orchestra Board of Directors and has performed with the group as a section percussionist since 2009. Andrew presented clinics on crowd-funding at the 2013 Midwest Clinic and 2014 Texas Music Educators Association annual convention, and recently presented a clinic called “Launching the MIDI Controller into the Music Curriculum” at the 2018 Texas Music Educators Association annual convention.

An avid performer of new music, Andrew has individually commissioned and given the world premieres of music written for percussion by Doug Bush, Kyle Kindred, Dwayne Rice, Martin Blessinger, Ryan George, and David Maslanka. Most recently, Andrew was selected to perform in recitals for the National Conference on Percussion Pedagogy, the National Association of College Wind and Percussion Instructors, and the College Music Society.

Hector Gil is a percussion education consultant, curriculum designer, clinician, adjudicator, and arranger for various programs across the U.S. Most recently, he served as Director of Percussion at Vista Ridge High School and Henry Middle School from 2008 to 2024, where his students achieved numerous national accolades that include being named the TMEA Invited Percussion Ensemble Winner (2023 - Vista Ridge), The TMEA Honor Band Winner (2024, 2018, 2014, 2010 - Henry MS), The Percussive Arts Society International Percussion Ensemble Competition Winner (2018 - Vista Ridge), The Percussive Arts Society International Percussion Ensemble Competition Winner (2014 - Henry MS), The Black

In 2016 Ben traveled to Beijing on a clinic tour where he gave twenty-two clinics in eleven days including training for the top marching programs in the city as well as the Peoples Liberation Army and Navy percussionists.

Ben served on the staff of Metro Alliance Indoor Percussion Ensemble. He serves as a judge in the indoor percussion circuits AIA, IPA, MEPA, MIA, NWAPA, NTCA, RMPA, TCGC, WGAZ and WGPO.

Ben lives in the Dallas- Fort Worth area with his wife Maya and their four children, Bianca (23), Benjamin (21), Phoebe (19), and Theodore (18).

CJ Menge's passion for building community through music has led to a diverse career as a steel pan performer, educator, and composer. He is a classically trained percussionist who has been playing steel pan professionally since 1992. He currently serves as Executive Director of Inside Out Steelband, a 501 (c)(3) nonprofit organization. Menge co-founded professional steelband Bandandee-A in 1992 and renamed the group Inside Out Steelband in 1996, when he widened his vision to develop an Arts-in-Education program promoting the Trinidadian steel pan tradition in the greater Austin, Texas area. Since that time he has worked diligently to create a community of steel bands in Austin and Central Texas, many of which are year-round curricular school programs.

Menge founded the Inside Out Community Steelband in 2000, which extends the reach of Inside Out programs outside of schools and into the general population. This group currently includes 30 members of all ages. Menge has held long-term teaching artist or director positions with several school programs, including McCallum High School and Fine Arts Academy (Austin ISD), Sam Houston High School (San Antonio ISD), James Bowie High School (Austin ISD), KIPP Austin College Prep, KIPP Austin Collegiate, the Texas School for the Blind and Visually Impaired, Covington Middle School (Austin ISD), Round Rock High School (Round Rock ISD), and the University of Texas at Austin. As a clinician, Menge has worked with steel bands of all levels (Pre-K, Elementary, Middle School, High School, Community, and University) throughout the United States and beyond.

Menge has composed and arranged over 150 works for steel band, solo steel pan, and percussion. His works have been performed throughout the United States, and have been featured at national and international festivals. Many of his compositions and arrangements may be found at Boxfish Music Publishing, Inc., a sheet music publishing company he founded in order to promote original music for steel band and percussion. Recent commissions include works for solo steel pan, steel band, timpani, and percussion ensemble.

Dr. Francisco Perez (b. 1990) is a percussionist, composer, and educator from Pflugerville, TX. He currently serves as Instructional Associate Professor of Percussion Performance at Texas A&M University in College Station, TX.

Joey Carter is active as a vibraphonist, drum set artist, percussionist, pianist, organist, and arranger. He performs regularly as a piano soloist, with his own trio or quintet, the local artist Johnny Reno, and as a freelance and recording session musician. He has been a featured soloist at the Umbria Jazz Festival, North Sea Jazz Festival, the Montreux Jazz Festival, the Pori Jazz Festival, the Honolulu Jazz Festival, and festivals in Copenhagen, Salzburg, Verbier, and Budapest. Joey has appeared in concert with Peter Erskine, Randy Brecker, Cedar Walton, Chris Valdala, Ed Shaunessy, Alex Iles, Marvin Stamm, and many others. Joey is a member of and composer for the original jazz group Bertha Coolidge which won Album of the Year (Live at the Caravan of Dreams 030201 in 2002), best Jazz Group (2003, 2004), Best Live Show (2008), and was inducted into the Fort Worth Weekly music Hall of Fame in 2018. Joey has arranged music for movies (including Spy Kids 3D), drum lines, big bands, musicals, and many popular music projects.

Joey has taught music theory, ear training, jazz history, jazz ensemble, jazz improvisation, and private lessons in percussion and jazz piano at Texas Christian University since the fall of 2000. He received his Master of Music degree in Percussion Performance at Texas Christian University in May of 2000 and a B.M.E. from the University of Texas at Arlington in 1991.

Richard C. Gipson came to TCU in 2002, first as Director and Professor in the School of Music (2002-2018), then as Dean of the College of Fine Arts (2018-2022). That followed a 26-year career at the University of Oklahoma as percussion professor but also in administrative positions of note. During his tenure as TCU School of Music director, enrollments and faculty size doubled, physical facilities expanded significantly, and TCU embraced the goal of creating a world-class facility to serve the School. He continued to teach and conduct his entire tenure as director. As Dean of the TCU College of Fine Arts he oversaw the planning and construction of two major buildings and the the planning of a complete renovation of a third, the maintenance (and increase) of enrollment throughout the pandemic, and the well-being and high level of productivity of the faculty and students in the College of Fine Arts.

From 1976-2002 he was Regents' Professor of Percussion at the University of Oklahoma, where he also held several administrative positions, including Director of the School of Music (six years), Executive Assistant to the President (two years), and Interim Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs (one year). He performed as timpanist and percussionist for more than 30 years with the Oklahoma City Philharmonic, the Oklahoma Symphony, and the Austin and Corpus Christi Symphony Orchestras.

He holds a doctorate from Penn State University, and undergraduate and master's degrees from the University of Texas. In addition to TCU and OU, he taught percussion at the University of Texas, Central Missouri State University, Susquehanna University, and Penn State University. His more than 30 original compositions and arrangements for marimba and percussion ensemble are published by Southern Music Company, Studio 4 Productions, Columbia Pictures Publications, Keyboard Percussion Publications, and the OU Percussion Press, and his four commercial compact disc recordings with the OU Percussion Orchestra helped set the standard for performance and recording in that genre. He commissioned and/or premiered more than three dozen works for percussion orchestra and ensemble, including some of the now iconic works for percussion. While at OU, the OU Percussion Orchestra was competitively selected to perform at the Percussive Arts Society's (PAS) International Conventions in 1985, 1990, 1995, and 2001.

In 2017 he received the Lifetime Achievement in Education Award from PAS and was named Music Administrator of the Year by the College Orchestra Directors Association.

Jeffrey S. Hodge has been a member of the percussion faculty at Texas Christian University since 2007. At TCU he is involved in every aspect of the Percussion Studio, including teaching/arranging for the TCU Drumline, conducting/directing the Percussion Orchestra II and Percussion Ensemble II, directing the Steel Band II, teaching percussion techniques and applied lessons at all levels.

As a performer, Mr. Hodge has performed in Mexico, France, Italy, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Netherlands, England, and across the United States. He holds a master's from the University of Arkansas, and a bachelor's degree from Texas A&M University-Commerce. Mr. Hodge is an active performer, clinician, composer/arranger, and adjudicator for a variety of percussion events across Texas. He works as a clinician/artist for Innovative Percussion. Mr. Hodge lives in Dallas with his wife Alex, and their son Carter.

Brian A. West is Professor of Music and the Division Chair and Coordinator of Percussion at TCU. Under his direction, the TCU Percussion Studio has received international recognition. The TCU

Percussion Orchestra and Ensembles were named a winner in the 2022, 2019, 2015, 2011, 2008, and 2005 Percussive Arts Society International Percussion Ensemble Competitions, and the TCU Drumline won the 2012 and 2006 PAS Marching Percussion Festivals. Prior to coming to TCU, Dr. West served as the Director of Percussion Studies at Texas A&M University-Commerce, a winner in the 2000 PAS International Percussion Ensemble Competition.

He has conducted and/or performed in Hawaii, Italy, Spain, England, France, Australia, Taiwan, and across the United States. Dr. West's passion for the percussion ensemble medium has led to commissioning and premiering over thirty-five new works for this genre. Additionally, he is the Executive Producer of four percussion ensemble CDs.

Within the Percussive Arts Society, Dr. West has served on the Board of Advisors and was recently the Chair of the Percussion Ensemble Committee. He is an active performer, clinician, composer/arranger, and adjudicator for a variety of percussive events. Dr. West holds a doctorate from the University of Oklahoma, master's from Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and a bachelor's degree from the University of North Texas. He works as an artist clinician for Innovative Percussion, Yamaha, Remo, Marimba One, and Sabian.

Brian Youngblood is the Associate Director of Bands and Assistant Professor of Music at TCU. He received his Bachelor of Music Education degree from Abilene Christian University and his Master of Percussion Performance degree from East Texas State University. Before coming to TCU, he taught in the public schools for twelve years. He began teaching in 1987 and spent his first ten years teaching at L.D. Bell High School in Hurst Texas and followed with two years as Director of Bands and Fine Arts Director at Brewer High School in White Settlement. In 1999 Mr. Youngblood joined the faculty at TCU. During his time at TCU, he was Director of the TCU Horned Frog Marching Band for two decades. He also led the TCU Symphonic Band to the group's first selection and performance at a regional CBDNA Conference. His ensemble responsibilities at TCU include the TCU Symphonic Band, and assistance with the TCU Concert Ensembles and TCU Athletic Bands. In addition to his work with the bands, he also teaches music education classes, music technology classes and assists with the supervision of student teachers.

Mr. Youngblood is a leading drill designer, arranger and program coordinator for marching band. He regularly consults with and writes shows for high school and university bands across the nation. His shows have won many state championships, a Bands of America National Championship and placed in the finals of numerous competitions. Mr. Youngblood is a Co-developer for V-Drill Drill Design Software. He is also a managing partner with B&B Design Concepts LLC for the distribution of the software. Mr. Youngblood is an active member of the Texas Music Educators Association, The Texas Bandmasters Association and the College Band Directors National Association. He is a member of the Pi Kappa Lambda National Music Honor Society and the Alpha Chapter of the Phi Beta Mu International School Bandmaster Fraternity.

Mr. Youngblood is a product of public school music education in the state of Texas. Before playing in the L.D. Bell High School Band under the direction of Roger Winslow, he was in the junior high bands of Marion West, Earnest Repass and Danny Prado. His undergraduate studies with John Whitwell and Gary Lewis, then at Abilene Christian University, furthered his training in Music Education. His percussion training began with Jim McGahey and Warren Dewey and continued with Allen Teal at Abilene Christian University. His percussion professors at East Texas State University were Robert Houston and Jimmy Finney.

Mr. Youngblood is a frequent clinician and adjudicator in Texas and the Southwest. He enjoys working as a clinician with bands from every age level. He is married to Karin Youngblood and they are the parents of Sarah and Joshua Youngblood. The family attends Trinity Bible Church in Weatherford, Texas.

TCU PERCUSSION STUDIO

The TCU Percussion Studio, under the direction of Dr. Brian A. West, is dedicated to maximizing percussion education through a wide variety of performing ensembles and a closely supervised private lesson structure. The size of the studio enables all students to receive a variety of performance opportunities and much individual attention. The emphasis of the studio is to give all students a well-rounded knowledge of percussion.

The TCU Percussion Ensembles are dedicated to furthering percussion education and performance by commissioning new works, performing a variety of literature on and off campus, and producing high-quality recordings. As a result of winning the Percussive Arts Society International Percussion Ensemble Competition, TCU has performed Showcase Concerts at PASIC in 2022, 2019, 2015, 2011, 2008, and 2005. In 2011 they made their New York City debut, performing at the Kaufman Center's Merkin Hall. In 2005 the Percussion Orchestra performed at the Texas Music Educators Association Convention and released their first CD entitled The Palace of Nine Perfections. Albany Records has commercially released two TCU CD's, Prelude to Paradise (2015) and Escape Velocity (2009). Both recordings include pieces only commissioned and premiered by TCU. In total, the TCU Percussion Orchestra and Percussion Ensembles have commissioned and premiered over thirty-five pieces and is awaiting several more for premieres in upcoming seasons. Additionally, TCU enjoys successful steel band and marching percussion programs. Highlights include performances at the Percussive Arts Society Marching Percussion Festival, Texas Music Educators Association Convention, Fort Worth's Bass Hall, bowl games across the country, and many local venues.
